ASSIGNMENT

Sr. No .	Aim of the practical
1.	You will create a “My Interests” web page—sharing information having images, and links about things you enjoy. Let’s begin to add some content to the body of your web page. Between your body tags: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Add at least 2 divs. Remember that divs will later be used to style different parts of your web page differently (e.g., having different text font, color, or size, or a different background color for the web page content between the div tags). Add at least one header within a div tag. Play around with different header sizes (e.g., h1, h2 ... h6). Add at least one paragraph within a div tag. Make some text bold to make it really stand out, drawing the reader’s attention. Emphasize some text with italics to draw attention or format the title of a book, movie, or newspaper. Experiment with nesting tags—maybe you want to format a title within a bold heading. Next, add images to your "My Interests" page. Consider adding images that represent items you added to your original page. You should use what you know about the tag in HTML. You can use your own images or find some images online. Wikimedia Commons (https://commons.wikimedia.org/wiki/Main_Page) and Pixabay (https://pixabay.com) are two great resources, but there are many, many more! Create Lists Add an ordered list to your “My Interests” page. For example, you could rank your top five favorite foods, books, movies, etc. Add an unordered list. For example, list several places you would like to visit, jobs you would like to have, people you would like to meet, etc. Make a Table Next, create a table, with at least two rows, including one header row. Use the table’s cells to organize text, images, or links for your web page.

Next add styles to your “My Interests” page using the CSS:

1. Use CSS to style at least two HTML elements (paragraphs, headings, images etc.)
2. Add IDs or classes to at least two HTML elements.
3. Use CSS to style your IDs or classes.

Volleyball has always been my favorite because it helps me to relieve stress if I am mad or upset. Volleyball was originally called "mintonette," which was named in 1895 by William G. Morgan. Morgan designed the game to be a combination of basketball, baseball, tennis, and handball. In 1900, a special ball was designed for the sport. The style of play is in setting and spiking balls. It was first demonstrated in the Philippines in 1915. Over the years that followed, it became clear that similar rules were needed for tournament play, and thus the United States Volleyball Association was formed in 1928. Volleyball also can be an aggressive game. I feel happy when I play volleyball because I feel like I belong on the floor.

Rules Of Volleyball

All people should get involved in volleyball. It is great for health and and if you are mad hitting a ball will definitely help.

- There are six players on court in a volleyball team, who each must rotate one position clockwise every time their team wins back service from the opposition.
- Only the three players at the net positions can jump and spike or block near the net. The backcourt players can only hit the ball over the net. For example, if you are in the backcourt do not run up and try to spike you can only do the when you are in frontcourt. Here is another example, if you are in front court do not run to the backcourt and try to hit the ball.
- Most teams will include in their starting line-up a setter, two center blockers, two recess blockers, and a universal spiker. Only certain players will be involved with service reception. Players will also have special positions for attack and defence. Substitutions are allowed during the game.
- Follow the rules or you will be penalised.

TravelTravel - My Desire

Traveling is an extraordinary experience every person needs to try. It reveals a whole new and exciting world out there, opens out your inner strength, and presents with unforgettable adventures. Here are some examples of ways about traveling to have more and get inspired.

Traveling - The First Thing on Your To-Do List

There is nothing quite like traveling, like seeing a new place for the first time or returning to a favorite one. People of all ages, from all around the world, go to foreign places for different reasons – usually, to work, family, and leisure. Whether by plane, train, ship or by automobile, traveling is generally a pleasurable experience, at least for the people who can financially afford comfortable and safe methods of travel. But it has more benefits than satisfying one's need to make money. Like, for example, to see loved ones and enjoy oneself on vacation. There are other benefits of traveling worth mentioning and trying out.

Traveling is a humbling experience. It is surely a superior feeling: to go to another country, and to see people live differently, speak differently, look differently. This is how one comes to understand how big and crazy our world is. Another benefit to traveling is coming to see one's native country in a different light, in a different way. It is possible through making a comparison of your home and a foreign location. Here, this is impossible without traveling. Going to unknown places create new perspectives and inspiration.

AdventureAdventure - My Dream

Adventure means the act of going out in search of the new and the unknown. In our country the desire for adventure is rare. To do a thing without an ulterior motive is foreign to our nature and temperament. We are an ambitious people. If we go out on a venture, we do so with some object or business that may bring profit in this world, or one a pilgrimage that may bring profit in the world to come. We have records of ancient travelers coming from other countries to India. We do not know of more Indians who traveled in foreign lands in pursuit of knowledge.

There are only three memories of Indian leaders crossing the Bay of Bengal to Indonesian Islands. But this is certainly not adventure, pure and unadorned. True adventure lies in facing all the troubles and risks of crossing after unknown surely for the joy of it. It sends out a challenge to the spirit of heroism. It appeals to our strength of mind. The call of the unknown thrills us and excites us. Is there any risk in trying to remove the evil that keeps something hidden for our knowledge? We will take that risk and bring within the range of our knowledge. It is the difficulty that lies in the way of discovering the unknown, too great? We will overcome the difficulty and triumph over all the obstacles. That is the spirit. Danger and difficulties are only the obstacles. That is the spirit. Danger and difficulties are only the obstacles that sharpen the edge of our knowledge.

Adventure To Explore

Most of us never lose that child's desire for excitement and new experiences, but we come to believe that adventures are too expensive, too dangerous, or too physically demanding for us. As a consequence, we give ourselves to comfort and safety, willing to get our hearts unexcited through cinema. We become afraid to dare.

Thankfully, opportunities to see new places, learn new skills, and gain confidence in our abilities are more plentiful than ever. Aspiring explorers of every age and physical condition can find exciting locations in countries from America to Africa, in the mountains and in the oceans, in hazardous surroundings or rough bedding beneath the stars. Possible adventures await in every corner of the globe.

My Favourite Travel Destination:

1. Paris
2. Switzerland
3. Venice
4. Himalayas
5. India
6. Greek Islands
